

EMMA SMIT-GERAGHTY

Emma is a graduate of Sheridan Institute's Musical Theatre Performance Program. She has previously worked at the Groove School of Dance in Toronto as an administrator and a teacher, teaching Ballet, Tap, Jazz, Hip Hop, Acro, Glee, Music Theatre, Zumba, and Conditioning.

Emma worked as the voice teacher for Stagecoach West Toronto and as the Music Director for the Upper Canada Repertory Company. She loves story-telling in all forms, and is wrapping up work on her second play writing venture. In addition to teaching at both CDA and Stagecoach Truro, she works out of her home teaching piano and voice lessons.

Emma is a member of the very popular group, Brigid. Brigid is the inspirational powerhouse trio of Emma Smit-Geraghty, Beth Terry, and Sarah McKim-Glinz. The meaning of the name Brigid is "three in one." A sisterhood. A movement. An opportunity to make the world a better place. This trio of open-hearted singers cares deeply about connecting with people and shining a light on what needs to change.
